The Keziya Orphanage Home

In northern Uganda, where rebels have terrorized the land for twenty years, children wandered the countryside looking for help. The Rev. Otto Naptali and his wife, Filder, took eleven children into their modest house in Gulu before they had to start turning down desperate requests from children at their door.

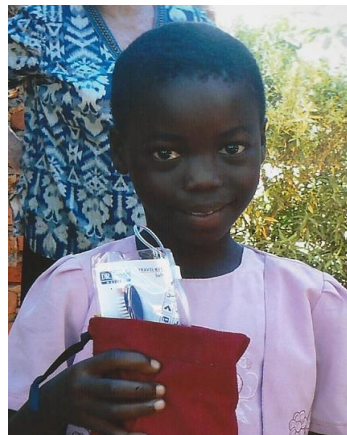

They decided to form a group of family and friends to start the Keziya Orphanage. Now a series of mud huts on a piece of land serves as home to many more orphans. Shared Blessings has added a dormitory to accommodate even more children.

The children are grateful for a daily meal and shelter, as well as having people to care for them. They are thrilled to be attending school and now have hope for the future. These are the fortunate ones. Many more children need help.
